

Report on the Second EASTS PhD and Early Career Researcher Forum (online)

Dr Derlie Mateo-Babiano (Women in Transport Leadership)

To be convened as a pre-conference prior to the 14th International Conference of the EASTS, the ECR Forum is a platform for students and researchers as well as academics and professionals to:

1. Strengthen the research skills of students and ECRs through knowledge-sharing with academics, particularly on conducting and publishing research in transportation amidst the current situation
2. Facilitate discussions among students, ECRs, and industry leaders, particularly on the opportunities and challenges for future professional development
3. Provide opportunities to establish networks and linkages among fellow transportation researchers and professionals in the region

Small Group Exercise 1

- You are concerned that a PhD student might have 'cut corners' whilst collecting data that is part of a co-authored paper you are both writing with your supervisor. You have access to the summary dataset, but not the paper questionnaires filled in by the participants.
- How might you proceed to resolve your concerns?

More collaborations with other researchers, participate in an IRG good publications and research grant

I can take a role of mentee in the upcoming similar sessions

Meeting with the Mentor and taking on other related research in the future.

Development of sustainable and ethical data gathering methodologies learning more on research ethics, and starting the research title I came up with in the workshop.

Joining to IRG and build up international research network

Write and network
